Join us in beautiful Athens, Georgia for the 3rd annual Reacting to the Past Winter Conference! Pioneered by historian Mark Carnes, Reacting to the Past has been implemented at over 300 colleges and universities in the United States and abroad. The initiative is sustained by the Reacting Consortium, an alliance of colleges and universities that promote imagination, inquiry, and engagement as foundational features of teaching & learning in higher education.

GAME OPTIONS

- Rousseau, Burke and Revolution in France, 1791
- The Threshold of Democracy: Athens in 403 B.C.E.
- Greenwich Village, 1913: Suffrage, Labor, and the New Woman
- Patriots, Loyalists, and Revolution in New York City, 1775–1776

---

Reacting to the Past Consortium
Jennifer Worth, Ph.D. (jworth@barnard.edu)

University of Georgia Reacting to the Past program
T. Chase Hagood, Ph.D. (tchagood@uga.edu)
Naomi J. Norman, Ph.D. (nnorman@uga.edu)